Welcome to Budapest,

A UIA congress is always a special time for knowledge sharing, conviviality and openness to other cultures, with no set pattern or single mind-set. Budapest is a very modern city that is also steeped in history, which needs to be discovered at a gentle walking pace. It is not very far from the banks of the Danube and the modern hotels in the heart of Buda and Pest to the city's historic sites.

One of the main themes, that of compliance, will be making headlines as transposition starts of the Fourth European Directive of May 20, 2015 on the prevention of money laundering and terrorism financing. Lawyers, who are guardians of civil liberties, will be discussing the difficult course to be navigated between investigative transparency, privacy protection and business confidentiality.

The second main theme is the protection of personal data, a subject that is as sensitive as it is topical, in a digital universe where the dissemination of information is instant and very difficult to control, in particular when confidential documents are sent electronically. These two sessions will be attended by experts and prominent figures, who will share their experiences and delve deeper in the fundamental issues raised by these subjects.

Another major event deserves your attention: the meeting of the International Bar Leaders' Senate, a venue for discussions on our current and future practices, which is reserved for the Presidents of lawyers' organisations.

A UIA congress is also a great place to make friends and to forge lasting business relationships. The UIA takes care to ensure that efficient work goes hand in hand with the pleasure of being together. A quality social and leisure programme has been designed that will enable you to discover the many charms of Budapest.

We have all worked very hard to ensure that the Budapest Congress is a success, however this will not be possible without you, so we hope that as many of you as possible will join us in Budapest.

Jean-Jacques UETTILLER
UIA President

Dear Colleagues, Dear Friends,

In my capacity as Congress President and also as a Vice-President of the Hungarian Bar Association and the Budapest Bar Association, I very much look forward to welcoming you all to the UIA 2016 Congress that will be held in our beautiful city of Budapest.

Budapest, like Hungary, has a long, rich and often bloody history, largely due to its location on the crossroads between East and West, as well as North and South. The city was first named Aquincum, and was originally a Celtic settlement that became the Roman capital of Lower Pannonia. Nomadic Hungarian tribes arrived in the 9th century and, although the Mongols pillaged their first settlement in 1241 and 1242, by the 15th century, the rebuilt city had become one of the centres of Renaissance humanist culture. After 150 years of Ottoman rule, the area experienced increasing prosperity in the 18th and 19th centuries, and Budapest became a global city after its unification in 1873. It was also the second capital of the Austro-Hungarian Empire.

When you visit Budapest, I hope you will agree that the richness of our history is only matched by the beauty of the city itself. Budapest has many World Heritage sites, which include the banks of the Danube, the Buda Castle complex, Andrassy Avenue, Heroes' Square and the Millennium Underground Railway, which is the second oldest metro line in the world. In addition, the city has around 80 geothermal springs and the world's largest thermal water cave system, so please do not forget to bring your swimming costumes!

Both the Hungarian Bar Association and the Budapest Bar Association are based in the city, and all of their members are committed to safeguarding the fundamental principles that the UIA strives to uphold and maintain. These days, our legal community also has an international flavour, of which we are very proud. We place great importance on increasing and maintaining our integration with the global legal community, which is why it is an absolute pleasure for us to host the 2016 UIA Congress in our capital city.

I hope that you will not only take away some new legal expertise, perspectives and business contacts from our city, but also many fond memories of the sights and experiences that Budapest and traditional Hungarian hospitality have to offer.

Welcome to Budapest!

András SZECSEKAY
President of the Congress

UNION INTERNATIONALE DES AVOCATS

Bringing Together the World's Lawyers

For over 85 years, the Union Internationale des Avocats (UIA - International Association of Lawyers) has been defending the legal profession and facilitating international contacts, cooperation and the exchange of knowledge among lawyers, while respecting their cultural and professional diversity.

As an association that is open to all legal professionals, the UIA is the only major international association of lawyers that:

- Promotes the fundamental principles of the legal profession and the development of legal knowledge in all fields at the international level.
- Contributes to the professional growth of its members through the exchange of information in forums established by its scientific commissions.
- Intervenes frequently all over the world on behalf of lawyers who are imprisoned or persecuted for practising their profession.

Today, the UIA brings together more than two million lawyers through its individual and collective members (bar associations, lawyers' federations and organisations) from more than 120 countries. Several types of membership are available, depending on your profile and the country in which you practise law.

Join the UIA and become a member of the world's strongest network of lawyers

You can participate in the work of the UIA commissions and share your experience with professionals from over 120 countries, during seminars, training courses and the UIA annual congress.

You will also be able to join forces with the UIA, which, each year, provides its support to lawyers who cannot freely practise their profession. Everywhere in the world where rights of defence are threatened or the proper administration of justice is hindered, the UIA will make your voice heard.

Becoming a member of the UIA will also enable you to benefit from a preferential rate for your registration to the congress.

Compliance

Main Theme 1

■
Erzsébet A

Challenges and opportunities for the legal profession

Compliance is one of the most crucial aspects of a company's structure and operations, as has been highlighted by recent public scandals affecting the reputation of companies. Reputation is the most important asset of a company, and compliance helps to safeguard it. The objective of this main theme is to introduce participants to compliance and its fundamentals, the challenges to compliance, the benefits of a thorough compliance programme, its building blocks, their implementation into a company's operations, the review and reporting mechanisms and internal investigations if an issue occurs, and to highlight the importance of this area of the law for the legal profession.

The morning session will start with a general introduction to compliance and to international conventions and initiatives: the OECD Anti-Bribery Convention, the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act (United States), the United Kingdom Bribery Act 2010, the UN Global Compact 10 Principles, the G20 Anticorruption action plan, and the ICC anti-corruption clause.

Following the general presentations, the session will continue with three specialist workshops dedicated to the practical aspects of building and implementing a compliance programme in the areas of competition law, anti-corruption and international trade controls.

International Bar Leaders' Senate

Corso A + B

Can the protection of confidential client information and the disclosure of information to combat money laundering be reconciled, or are they in fact diametrically opposed?

This is a decision that governments, courts and lawyers are increasingly having to face.

Some would argue that the attorney-client privilege is a basic value in any democratic society-- a fundamental principle of justice that must be accorded the highest priority.

That is the position that was taken by the Supreme Court of Canada in February 2015.

Others, citing events that have been occurring with increasing frequency in recent months, contend that priority must be placed on putting a stop to money laundering-- a recognised source of terrorist financing-- and eliminating barriers to unrestricted access to all sources of information.

Isn't this one of the consequences of the adoption of the 4th AML Directive by the European Parliament in May 2015?

What position should bar associations and law societies take on this issue?

We encourage all of you to attend the meeting of the International Bar Leaders' Senate, listen to the speakers address the different aspects of this situation, and take an active part in developing the solutions that will hopefully emerge out of this broad exchange of views. Working as we do in an environment that is increasingly open to alternative solutions and negotiated arrangements, is it possible to develop solutions that reconcile these two situations?

The Yin and the Yang?

Privacy and Data Protection in a Digital World

Main Theme 2

■
Erzsébet A

Towards an International Regulatory Approach for Mass Surveillance and Profiling

The session will, in general, be devoted to the issue of government surveillance of citizens for criminal profiling purposes (public aspect) as well as the corporate use of the personal data of clients/users for commercial profiling purposes (private aspect) in the context of a society where the processing of citizen and consumer data is increasingly prevalent.

These issues are certainly common to many countries and the challenge is how to ensure effective protection of the fundamental right to privacy and the protection of data in the public and private sectors, while including the protection of lawyers' professional privilege in response to electronic surveillance.

An international approach to this issue is required and must be implemented at various levels (governments, corporations and international organisations, for example), as was the case in the UIA resolution 'Privacy in Digital Communications' adopted at the Valencia Congress in 2015. This theme is the result of a deep reflection within the UIA.

Terrorist Attacks: Threats and Challenges for Human Rights

With the increase of terrorist attacks, we will examine the right to compensation of victims of these attacks, the effectiveness of this right according to international principles and national legislation, as well as the role of lawyers in victims' access to justice. We will also assess the impact of terrorism on human rights on a national and international level and the responsibility of governments to protect and safeguard these rights.

Economic Sanctions and International Arbitration

Our session will focus on legal and practical considerations in addressing issues arising from economic sanctions. The programme will consist of two panels. The first will examine the notion of economic sanctions, their sources and their relevance to international arbitration. The topic will be approached from the perspectives of counsel, arbitrator and arbitral institution. The second panel will look at the impact of economic sanctions on a dispute when applied as the lex contractus or as mandatory law, the enforcement of sanctions ordered by arbitrators and various issues related to the enforcement of arbitral awards.

3D Printing - the Shape of Things to Come

3D printing will revolutionize design, (re)production and distribution of everything from toys to medical devices, from fashion goods to tools and from weapons to art. Increasingly affordable and versatile, 3D printing offers once unimagined opportunities, like "printing" prostheses for amputees in remote, impoverished places. But it also creates new challenges, e.g., for IP owners, suppliers and distributors, and product-safety regulators. Even police agencies must consider such dangers as cheap, printable guns that metal detectors cannot identify. Can the 3D printing industry itself be of any help?

Direct Claims Against Insurers

For a party suffering damage from a tort or breach of contract, it may be desirable to sue not only the person liable, but also the liability insurer behind that person. This is a common issue and hot topic in transport law practice, and it is legally challenging. We will examine the concept of direct claims in transport and maritime law from different angles and in different jurisdictions.

Law Firm Mergers and Acquisitions

Many lawyers are of course specialized in M&A, but to what extent are lawyers ready to address the specific features of mergers and acquisitions in the sector of law firms? What are the particular legal concerns raised in such transactions? How should lawyers handle these concerns? What are the current trends in such transactions? These are some of the questions that the Management of Law Firms Commission and the Corporate Law and M&A Commission will try to answer during this joint session.

3D Printing - the Shape of Things to Come

3D printing will revolutionize design, (re)production and distribution of everything from toys to medical devices, from fashion goods to tools and from weapons to art. Increasingly affordable and versatile, 3D printing offers once unimagined opportunities, like “printing” prostheses for amputees in remote, impoverished places. But it also creates new challenges, e.g., for IP owners, suppliers and distributors, and product-safety regulators. Even police agencies must consider such dangers as cheap, printable guns that metal detectors cannot identify. Can the 3D printing industry itself be of any help?

Law of Robotics
■
Lánchíd A

Is it Necessary to Adopt Specific Legislation for Robots?

Robotics constitutes a major evolution in the years to come. The projects are there: intuitive car without driver, drones, and domestic robots. The current legal framework is not well-adapted to this subject. Our law does not take into account the autonomy of the robot and its capacity to make decisions. In these conditions, one should wonder: is it necessary to adopt specific legislation for robots?

Can We Have it All? Issues Related to Remote Working and Flex-time

New technologies have opened a wide range of possibilities for employees to work remotely. At the same time, new legislation is allowing flexible working time and part-time arrangements. Whilst this provides both employees and employers with flexibility, it also raises a good number of issues that will be analysed in this working session, including monitoring working time – straight time and overtime; work intrusion on employees’ privacy; zero-hour contracts vs exclusivity obligation; family-friendly rights; and health and safety.

The Future of the Lawyer
 ■
Erzsébet B

Impact of Technology on the Future of the Profession
 Are the core values of our profession threatened by the technological tsunami that is sweeping it?
 Will the long-standing traditional relationship of trust between the lawyer and his client fade in the wake of formulaic responses to legal concerns?
 Is the immediacy of communications a threat to the quality and depth of advice given to the client?
 How can we avoid a schism between a generation of young jurists trained in this new environment, and their more senior colleagues, moulded by a classical way of understanding the legal culture and the concept of professionalism?

- Typical provisions to avoid spoiling children;
- Last will of registered partnerships.

 Does a foreign investor need a local representative in your country? In some countries a foreign investor is required to appoint a tax representative, and in other countries directors of companies are required to be resident in the country. We will review the situation in a number of countries across the world and we will analyse the liabilities of the local representative.

How to Survive Compliance? The Financial Institutions of the 21st Century and their Challenges
 As companies themselves, the financial institutions of the 21st century are facing the challenge to accommodate not only the new technologies but also the increasing compliance obligations they are required by law to assume. Both aspects demand from these companies a significant allocation of resources and time, which entails a reduction of the means they would have available for the development of their business. What fields are affected by compliance? What are the consequences for the business of financial institutions?

Food Law / EU Law

■
Lánchíd B

Origin of Processed Food Products

Loss of trust in the European Union leads several member states to put in place legislation making origin labelling of food products mandatory. Currently at the top of the agenda, the issue of origin is debated among a great number of stakeholders, for instance member states versus the European Union in the European Court of Justice, food industry versus farming world and consumers, etc. The matter is of great legal complexity. Regulation n°1169/2011 on food labelling and the European Court of Justice case law set important limits on the power of member states to impose mandatory origin labelling.

Furthermore, regulation n°1169/2011 provides that the origin of processed food products is based on the provisions of European customs law. In the US, origin requirements (COOL) are also an important issue. Lawyers have a major advisory role on all these crucial topics on which operators lacks expertise.

A Case Study: Acquiring a Fully Leased Building from Due Diligence to Completion

The 60th annual congress of the UIA will be dealing with compliance and data protection as the main themes.

While in many respects compliance can be an intangible notion, it is apparent that it does affect every field of law ensuring that certain standards are met for business conduct and governance of firms.

Often, in legal practice, a way to help your clients ensure compliance is to assist and advise in relation to their decision-making process so decisions are made in an orderly and informed fashion. In real estate acquisitions this will depend on a wide range of variables, such as the type of client (a mutual fund, a public entity, a listed PLC or even a private individual) and the type of property (investment portfolio, commercial or residential). In each case, a well-oriented due diligence process will be the key to ensuring compliance.

Following the business practice approach started in our 59th annual congress, we would like to put the concepts of compliance and due diligence into a more practical context.

We aim to have all speakers discuss a single case study that allows each to share the key cornerstones of the process of acquiring a fully leased property, from initial compliance formalities for new clients and exclusivity negotiations through to due diligence and completion.

Alongside this we will try to identify what kind of issues can become a compliance problem for a particular type of client in each jurisdiction and share any specific examples and war stories from our own practice and experience.

Recognition and Enforcement of Foreign Judgments and Foreign Arbitral Awards: Recent Trends and Developments

Recognition and enforcement of decisions abroad are one of the most critical issues as regards dispute resolution in international matters. When the parties are based in different countries, it is essential for the creditor to obtain decisions easily and efficiently enforceable in those jurisdictions where the debtor's assets are located.

Sometimes the declaration of enforceability of a foreign decision (if required) is governed by international rules, but the way the national courts apply them can vary greatly. Moreover, when a foreign decision is enforceable, a further crucial point is the lack of uniform international legislation about enforcement procedures that remain entirely a matter of domestic laws of the country where enforcement is sought. These differences may result in length of enforcement procedures or even non-enforcement of decisions.

This session will discuss recent worldwide developments regarding those issues both from a domestic and a cross-border perspective, with particular reference to the current trends concerning principles set forth on this subject in EU regulations and international conventions.

Is the Art Market a Wild Horse?
 “Man Controlling Trade” is the name given to two monumental equestrian statues created by sculptor Michael Lantz (1908-1988) for the Federal Trade Commission Building in Washington, D.C. The sculptures, which won an art contest sponsored by the U.S. government during the New Deal, represent a man using all his strength to keep a wild horse from going on a rampage and show the ambivalence about the regulation of trade. Does the art trade require national or supra-national control? And what is the optimal level of regulation and compliance that the art market requires? Or is the invisible hand of the market a sufficient (or better) regulator of the public and private interests involved in the art market? A panel of distinguished lawyers and industry experts will present opposing views on the above issues, focusing on different crucial aspects of the art market.

Young Lawyers Driving Law Firm Reform: Shaping the Future of the Legal Profession
 1 ■ The future of the partnership model: shall progress be based on merit or just in years worked and hours billed?
 2 ■ Working to live, not living to work: looking for more flexible ways of working.
 3 ■ Gender: equality of ambition but inequalities in pay and opportunities.
 4 ■ Fully integrating technology: still a pending challenge?
 Since the start of the global downturn, law firms have had to evolve and adapt to changing client needs, with the last five years seeing unprecedented change. For many firms, this means becoming more commercially minded and developing new business models to meet client expectations. Young lawyers are adapting to these changes early on in their careers and, as the next generation of leaders, they have the potential to transform the way the legal profession works for years to come. We will discuss how our generation wants to change the legal profession.

The Global Human Trafficking Pandemic: Legal Framework for Eradicating Slavery in the 21st Century
 Every year more than 1 million people around the world are victims of human trafficking - many women and children. Children as young as 5 years old are sold into prostitution; boys as young as 9 or 10 are forced to work as child soldiers. Human trafficking is a multibillion dollar industry fueling organized crime and commercial industries alike. The heart of human trafficking is manifested in (1) trafficking enforced labor; (2) trafficking in sexual exploitation; (3) trafficking in harvesting of tissue, cells, and organs; and (4) conscription into forced militias. Human trafficking is one of the most pressing global human rights issues of the 21st century. This panel will discuss:

- The scope of the problem;
- Global legislative responses;
- Human rights responses;
- Commercial and supply side deterrents;
- Enforcement of anti-trafficking laws;
- Public awareness and education campaigns;
- Best practices in anti-trafficking efforts;
- What lawyers can do.

Litigation and Sports: It's Not All Fun and Games

This session examines torts in sports and the appropriate redress. Specific situations causing harm in sports will be addressed such as injuries by and to athletes or spectators (e.g. injuries in collective sports such as football, incidents in stadiums, skiing accidents, etc.), including their consequences for athletes, clubs, sports associations, federations and other sports entities. A particular focus will be placed on how the courts deal with tortious actions in sports matters, in a comparative law perspective.

Alternative solutions to litigation will also be considered, such as the extent to which tort matters can be referred to arbitration or mediation. Additional sports sanctions (such as by sports federations) will also be discussed, including cases before the Court of Arbitration for Sport (CAS).

Corporate Criminal Liability for Complicity in the Commission of Grave Crimes of International Law

At a time when business enterprises are increasingly being accused of complicity in international crimes such as war crimes and crimes against humanity, international jurisdictions have yet to develop instruments that address the issue of corporate liability. Though models of corporate liability can be found in most domestic jurisdictions, those jurisdictions remain reluctant to prosecute their own nationals, whether - natural or legal persons.

- Would the issue of corporate liability be better addressed in international forums?
 - Does the complementarity principle work in practice? Should international courts take precedence?
- Would there be no other option for the prosecution of such crimes before the ICC than a revision of the Rome Statute? What are the options before the ICC?
- How would you advise your clients?

General Excursion

Tuesday, November 1 9:00 am - 5:00 pm: Gödöllő and the Lázár Equestrian Park

Departure by bus at 9:00 am

Located 35 km from Budapest, the Royal Palace of Gödöllő was the summer residence of King Franz Josef I and Queen Elizabeth (Sissi) from 1867 to 1916. It is known as the "Hungarian Versailles", and is the second-largest baroque palace in the world and the largest in Hungary. The palace, which has a rich history and remarkable architecture, has served as inspiration for similar constructions throughout Europe. You will be able to view rooms that are still complete with 19th century furnishings and admire the collections of porcelain and weapons.

A transfer by coach to the Lázár Park will then be organised. The equestrian park was founded by the Lázár brothers, who are the world two-in-hand coach driving champions. You will be able to sample a glass of apricot liqueur and pogácsa (savory biscuits that are typically Hungarian). After a guided tour of the park, you will attend a horse show. A typical Hungarian lunch will then be provided.

The return will be by coach in the middle of the afternoon.

If you require a transfer to Budapest airport after this tour, please indicate it on the Congress registration form. In this case, we recommend that you book a return flight departing no earlier than 7.00 pm.

Price of the general excursion including transportation by bus, lunch and guided visits: €140 per person.

The number of participants is limited; therefore registrations will be confirmed in order of receipt.

Sporting Activities

Jogging and Football Game

Free sport activities have been planned to make the most of your stay in Budapest (depending on availability):

- Jogging along the Danube on Sunday, October 30

You will be back at the Budapest Marriott Hotel in time for the working sessions.

- Football game against a Hungarian lawyers' team on Monday, October 31

Departure time: 2.00 pm. You will be back at the Marriott Hotel in time for the closing ceremony.

TOURIST ACTIVITIES

It is preferable to reserve the tourist activities at the same time as you reserve your accommodation and post-congress programme, by sending the registration form to Destination Plus or by reserving at www.destinationplus-uia.com.

Some tours have a limited number of places and reservations will be taken on a first-come, first-served basis. We therefore recommend reserving places for spouses/guests in advance.

You will still have the possibility of registering with Destination Plus at the Budapest Marriott Hotel, subject to availability. Payments must be made in euros.

The definitive departure times for the tourist activities will be printed in the brochure and displayed in the Destination Plus reception office, as well as in all the Congress hotels.

A minimum number of participants is required for each activity, without which the activity may be postponed or cancelled (in this case a refund will be offered). Destination Plus will not offer a refund for any no-shows on the day of the activity (see cancellation conditions, page 49).

All the activities offered below are exclusively reserved for UIA Congress attendees. The official language for all the activities is English. Depending on the number of participants and the languages spoken, sub-groups may be formed.

All excursions will leave from the Budapest Marriott Hotel.
